ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and method are provided for distributing information between processes executing on a computer node and across clusters of computer nodes. The system also provides for querying the system database to request historical system information. A process can receive specific information by registering in the system database under a category that represents the desired type of system information.